Amanda is an established healthcare attorney in Massachusetts who focuses her practice on regulatory compliance in the healthcare sector.

Amanda works with various healthcare entities, including health systems, hospitals, clinics, ambulatory surgery centers, urgent care providers, community health centers, imaging facilities, physician groups, skilled nursing facilities, assisted living facilities, trade associations, and individual practitioners.

Amanda has represented healthcare clients before state and federal regulatory bodies like the Department of Public Health, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, and MassHealth, as well as the Commonwealth's various boards of registration in health professions. She is knowledgeable in guiding clients through the complex Determination of Need regulatory process, covering areas such as construction, new and expanded services, medical imaging technology, ownership transfers, conservation projects, transfers of site, and research exemptions.

Amanda has extensive experience in plan review, survey and licensure, essential service closures, and Medicare and MassHealth enrollment matters. Her legal experience also covers general business and corporate services, including healthcare privacy, patient rights, and the development of policies and procedures, as well as legislative and regulatory rulemaking services.

Amanda is an accomplished legal professional and the Founder and President of the Patrick Beauregard Foundation. This nonprofit organization was established in memory of her late husband and is dedicated to fighting young-onset colorectal cancer. The Foundation achieves its mission through education, advocacy, and collaboration with other organizations.

Amanda's dedication to her legal and philanthropic endeavors underscores her commitment to positively impacting the legal and healthcare communities.
